News From Gary Young's Chicago Seminar

Excerpted from Newsletters from James Niederland

By Rev. Mary Hardy, Ph.D

We are very lucky to be associated with a company like Young Living. Recently D. Gary Young, our founder, formed a relationship in Equador, and has spent several months there researching 1,600 new botanical discoveries and the healing properties of those plants. The beautiful thing about the distilling of these new discoveries is that they will be the first oils to be distilled at over 5,000 ft. Elevation! Young Living will be distilling these new oils at 8,000 to 10,000 feet! Research has shown that plants yield more healing properties when they are grown and distilled at higher altitudes. At a recent seminar I attended, I saw the light spectrum results of plants grown at various altitudes. Lavender, grown at sea level, showed very little light, while the same type of lavender grown at 5,000 ft. showed a bright ball of light and the healing properties of that batch of lavender was greatly enhanced.

Gary has been busy setting up an Academic program in Equador. The Agriculture Program begins in March. The Medical Program begins in September. We will be affiliated with 2 universities there. The Distance Learning Program should start in September as well. Gary is currently working with attorneys to set things up. Young Living is now completely registered and legal in Equador. By the end of January, we will be shipping product into Equador. They are working to get the clinic started as well. So far, Gary has participated in 68 operations on patients; assisting the surgeon and using essential oils in pre and post-op care; diffusing in the operating room and using the oils for bleeding and pain control.

At the Chicago seminar this past February, all who attended were able to purchase a 5 ml. bottle of Gary's first batch of Palo Santo essential oil. The first thing that Gary said was that these new oils open the frontal lobes. Anyone who understands the amygdala gland and the limbic system understands that opening the frontal lobes allows a person to spiritually heal their body. Linda, the woman who helps me write my newsletters, attended the meeting and purchased a bottle of Palo Santo (Holy Wood). A couple of days later, she started to get what she calls the "neck thing," where pain is concentrated in the back of the neck and radiates into the shoulders and the skull. In the past, time seemed to be the most effective relief. She has used Panaway and other oils and found a lot of relief in the past, but this time, she grabbed the Palo Santo that she still had in her purse and rubbed some on the back of her neck. Within seconds, the pain - ALL OF IT - seemed to melt away. Pain over! It did not come back. She also noted that it seemed to enhance her ability to deal with emotional trauma and remain positive. Wow! That's a lot to say about one little bottle of oil!

Gary is very excited about Palo Santo. He compared its resin to the frankincense resin. Palo Santo is used for cancer, arthritis, pneumonia, flu, etc. It's almost a twin to Frankincense. Once the Palo Santo tree has died it has a 28% oil production. There are thousands of acres of dead trees in Equador. Gary is not allowed to cut the green trees, but he is allowed to use the dead trees, which have a high concentration of oils in them. The longer a tree is dead, the higher the oil concentration. The Palo Santo essential oil is high in limonene. It contains 62 - 68%, which is very unusual for a woody tree! It is antiviral and antitumoral. It contains alpha pinene, the gate opener into the pituitary gland. This is why Gary says that these oils enhance the ability to access the frontal lobes of the brain. According to T.D.A. Lingo, this access can help humanity develop its spirituality and surpass space, time, energy and matter to advance into a higher frequency or dimension. Alpha Pinene is the main ingredient in Frankincense that fights cancer. Palo Santo fights infections and virus. It also reduces pain and is antiinflammatory.

Last August, Gary and a small crew went deep into the back country where Gary fell from a tree and broke his back. He crushed two vertebrae. Using only the oils that they had with them at that time they did Raindrop therapy and his crew was able to help get Gary out of the back country where this happened and get him to the hospital where they verified that he had broke his back. The Hospital's suggestion was months in bed in the hospital in a full body cast, with drugs, etc. Gary decided to take his chances at home using the oils and the help of his faith in his Creator. Gary has been combining Palo Santo with Frankincense and Idaho Balsam Fir for his broken back. He has no pain and on top of hiking around in Equador, he has even gone snowmobiling!

Gary is also excited about finding Ruta Graviola from Equador. It has a carbon chain of 6-16, which is very unusual. No other essential oil is known to have this many carbon chains. Most essential oils have a single or double carbon. One of the ingredients in the Ruta Graviola is nananoni 2. Gary feels that this essential oil will prove to modulate brain function and cause modulations of behavior. Hmmm, doesn't Prozac claim to do that? As a Homeopath, I use frequently use Ruta Graviola. I have discovered that it realigns the bone structure after a severe shock. It is one of the four homeopathic remedies that I use in emergencies because it does modify brain function and realigns ligaments and nerves. Currently in Equador, they use the Ruta plants to calm crying or angry children and babies, and they hang the plants on doorways to clear evil from people entering their homes.

Another new plant Gary was excited about was Mateko which is anti-inflammatory. He sees it having remarkable potential in the digestive region. He believes it increases digestive enzymes and function. Currently, people in Equador use it as a tea for improving digestion. They have no constipation, no colitis, nor any bowel problems.

Eucalyptus Globulus; eucalyptus c. It is distilled at an elevation of 10,000 feet. No other oils are distilled above 5,000 feet that are documented. Young Living will begin producing this essential oil exclusively from Equador. They are finding compounds in these oils (6 new compounds) that are present and prolific and don't exist in any other eucalyptus plant. Possible reasons for this are the high elevation, and the rich volcanic ash soil that they are grown in. Equador has more volcanoes than anywhere else in the world. It is built on volcanic ash, and the soil is beyond compare.

The Lemongrass they are distilling from Equador has four compounds that do not exist in any other Lemongrass found in other parts of the world. Gary has studied Lemongrass from Shri Lanka, Egypt, India, Brazil, the Philippines, etc., and this lemongrass is 10 times more superior than what we have now. And it does not have the stinging properties of the present Lemongrass!

Lipea citradora — Gary became ecstatic when he recounted his discovery of this plant. He has searched the world for nearly 20 years looking for this rarest of plants. Dr. Jean Valnet, a pioneer of modern day Aromatherapy in World War II, said that "If you can ever find this plant source, you would have the Number One agent to fight cancer and malaria." At the 1985 World Aromatic Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, Dr. LaPraz, a leading Aromatologist, said that "Lipea Citradora was not available anywhere in the world. But if it could be found again, it would strongly support liver regeneration and resist Malaria.

Gary has been looking for this plant for 20 years and hasn't been able to find it. It produces an essential oil for treating cancers and is the number one oil for malaria treatment. He first smelled Lipea Citradora in 1985 at the Geneva Conference. There was just a small amount left and he was told that it could no longer be found. It is an anticancer oil and a liver regenerating oil. It is the number one oil for malaria treatment. As Gary was walking along in Equador, he rubbed against a plant that was unfamiliar to him. Upon smelling it, he remembered it from the 1985 Geneva conference, and how he was told then that if you could find this plant, its essential oil could be used for cancer treatment, malaria, liver regeneration and for anti-viral uses. He was so excited when he found this plant that he began yelling over and over to his scout "This is Lipea?" The scout said "Si - why so excited?" Gary said "I've been looking for this for 20 years, all over the world!" The scout said "It grows wild all over Equador!" They distilled it and are producing it now. Gary also noted that so far, they have discovered twelve different varieties of Lipea in Equador!

Then, 3 weeks ago Gary found another plant that exploded with fragrance, Pa-lay-o (? spelling). He asked if there was an abundance of this and was told "Yes, it grows like a weed." They distilled it to find out more about it. The fragrance is beautiful, like a perfume. Gary said it smells like a combination of spearmint/melissa/frankincense with a hint of lemongrass.

The people of Equador and the medical doctors that Gary is working with there are very excited about the potential for healing that Gary will unveil by researching over 1600 aromatic plants that are currently unknown to medicine! They also found a tree similar to Balsam - not the balsam that we are familiar with in our Idaho Balsam Fir, which is a conifer, but the balsam along the lines of that which was talked about in EnGedi before the birth of Christ: the Balm of Gilead. The wood is heavier than oak and has a burnt reddish color that explodes with fragrance. The potential for bringing this wisdom to the world could be the root of a new medicine that would actually bring total healing to the planet. Aromatherapy and essential oils were the root of the first medicine. It is time for Essential oils to be restored to their proper place in the world of healing. Early Egyptians painted the walls with depictions of people smelling lotus blossoms. The fragrance of the plants can allow humanity to transcend time, space, matter and energy and rebuild us into new, powerful human beings that can heal the planet and heal humanity.
